Response from Kevin Hurley, Police and Crime Commissioner for Surrey to the HMIC report on 'Building the Picture: An inspection of police information management'

I thank HMIC for their national report on information management and for the results of the Surrey Inspection.

Some of the recommendations made in the national report have already been implemented in Surrey, which have been recognised in the Surrey report.

With regard to the other recommendations, I have asked for an update from Surrey Police and I have been provided with the plan to take these forward. I am satisfied that Surrey Police is addressing the recommendations and putting in more robust and consistent processes in information management where required.

Surrey Police has a Strategy Risk and Learning Group, chaired by the Deputy Chief Constable which is overseeing the response to the recommendations. A member of my staff attends this group to provide further oversight.
